DESCRIPTION

Each and every Christian is called and sent out into the world to be a minister of the Gospel. Some Christians are set apart to equip Christians to discover and fulfill their calling. In the three sessions, Dr. Shiell will speak on the need and opportunity for churches to reclaim their role in calling ministers, describe eight markers of churches who send people into church-based ministries and help you begin a process of calling forth ministers in your church.

These sessions will also include crucial conversations related to your congregation's culture of call and also testimonials from individuals who have either answered the call to seminary education or who live out their calling in their local work settings.

We will also highlight and celebrate the "Teaching Church Initiative," a pilot program in which students will train for ministry through Northern Seminary live streaming classes and churches will provide a healthy environment where their student can serve in pastoral ministry. This initiative seeks to address some of the challenges experienced by seminary students and churches. The student minister will be offered tuition relief and the church has the opportunity to be led by a typically younger minister who will be shaped and formed by the contextualized application of their academic studies.

SPEAKER: DR. BILL SHIELL

Dr. Bill Shiell is a native of Pensacola, Florida. He has a deep passion for both theological education and the church. Bill became Northern Seminary's eleventh president in January 2016 and joined the Northern community in March of that year.

Dr. Shiell holds a PhD in New Testament from Baylor University and has pastored for seventeen years. He came to Northern from First Baptist Church, Tallahassee, Florida, where he served as Senior Pastor. The author of several books and numerous articles, he is a member of the Society of Biblical literature. Bill and his wife Kelly were married in 1995, and they have two sons: Parker (2001) and Drake (2007). His hobbies include golf, reading and writing.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON:

Learn what churches can do to address poverty through relationship-based volunteering

Marie Wiese: has served as the Coordinator of Circles Indy for 7 years and has a heart for working to help people come together for good. Born in West Virginia, Marie is a first-generation college graduate, having majored in music at Concord University and taught music in public schools in southern WV. She left teaching to attend Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, where she obtained a Master of Divinity degree and moved to Indiana, where she has pastored several local Baptist churches for over 25 years. She is currently a bi-vocational pastor at Garden Baptist Church on the west side of Indianapolis. Pastoring a church and nurturing the Circles movement are very similar. Both jobs require a vision and are movements that bring transformation. Educating about poverty is at the heart of what Marie does with Circles and she is thrilled to be able to share about that with you.

Jill Chappell: is a lifelong volunteer for local and global community service activities. In 2016, she co-founded BRICKS, which stands for "Building Relationships in Community is Key", as an intergenerational organization whose mission is to facilitate relationship building among individuals and organizations through Education (about volunteerism). Example (as sponsor of Circles INDY), and Engagement (empowering people to amplify their voices on community for positive change). Rather than something extra, Jill describes her 'volunt-hearing' as part of everything she does.

Jene Chadwick Bridgewater: received her undergraduate and graduate degrees in education from University of Sioux Falls in Sioux Falls, SD and an M.Div. from Central Baptist Theological Seminary in Kansas City, KS. Jene and her husband, Bruce, moved to Scottsburg, IN in 2001. She found employment with the Scott County Partnership, a coalition/network with a 30 member board representing all sectors of the community. Over the years, she served in many roles with the SCP, becoming Executive Director in 2010. She oversees programs involved with Rx Drug Abuse prevention, Tobacco prevention and cessation, Juvenile Detention Alternatives Initiative, Drug-free Communities, Covering Kids & Families and various educational programs in cooperation with other agencies.
